CHINESE COMMUNIST BOMBING OF TACHEN ISLANDS

At noon on 1 November, the Chinese Communists hit the Tachen Islands their first air attack on any Nationalist-held offshore island. With 25X1
TU-2 light bombers, four ~~IL-10 attack bombers~~ ^(TU-2) and a total of 10 fighters and LA-11 bombed and strafed the largest islands in the Tachen group.

25X1 The Communists may be planning to attempt amphibious landings on the Tachens. [redacted] a Communist "convoy" 25X1 was spotted on 1 November "north of Ichiang," a small islet eight miles northwest of ~~Big~~ ^{Water} Tachen. Ichiang has been repeatedly shelled from Communist-held Toumen Island in the past several weeks, and was ^{being} ~~shelled~~ ^{by} intensively by both shore and ^{later} reportedly shelled ~~by~~ naval batteries [redacted] 25X1

Rather than signalling a landing attempt, the Tachen air strike may be the opening of a primarily aerial phase in Communist operations against the islands. Some American advisers believe that the Tachons could be made untenable by strong and continuous air assault. The Peiping regime, with superior air strength in range of the islands, may believe that Nationalist forces can be dislodged without committing ground forces.

The Chinese Nationalist defense minister gave the American ambassador his "person^{al} opinion" on 1 November that ~~the~~ Nationalist retaliation ~~air force "must" retaliate~~ for the Tachens attack. ~~He said that this~~ would "probably" result in an expansion of hostilities, although he hoped it would not, ~~as the Nationalists were not prepared for an expanded conflict.~~ He urged that the U. S. Seventh Fleet put in an appearance around the Tachens with carriers, in order to deter the Communists from expanding the conflict.
